

Two Roads: Master or Disaster

Become Wise

An external guide can be helpful and at times necessary. But we are called to move beyond the external boundaries to an internal freedom. By choosing the good, we become more and more free to choose the good. By choosing wisdom, we become wise.

Discussion Questions

1. If you could be excellent at any one thing, what would that be? Why?
 2. Can you think of an area of your life where you needed a lot of guidance/rules, but where you now “know the way”? Please describe.
 3. Law was given to know how to relate with God, have thriving community, and live a great life. But we can often stop at the Law. Have you found yourself stopping short at the Law? Discuss.
 4. The Greeks (specifically Aristotle) maintained that a person could “act into becoming”; we become brave by doing brave things, etc... Have you found this to be true?
 5. We become wise by making wise decisions on purpose. When we repeatedly do this over time, we become excellent. Have you been wise on purpose? Please describe.
-

God in Real Life

1. This week, when you come to any moment of decision, make wise decisions on purpose. Do not be afraid of making the wrong choice, because wisdom can be gained from that as well.
-

To the Heart

“Lord, how I love your law, it makes me wiser than my foes.” ~Psalm 119