

The Root

Radical

Our decisions have consequences. Each moral choice is a radical choice, because each decision comes from the root of one's self and changes that root. We would like that consequence to be hidden, but there is a public price for every private sin and we are invited to bring those sins to Christ...to the Light.

Discussion Questions

1. When it comes to Spring Break or taking a vacation, what is your favorite part about your time away?
 2. What is our response to letting God transform our radical sin into radical love? Do you find it easy to let Him?
 3. "Light came into the world, but people preferred darkness to the light." What is keeping us from bringing our wounds and our darkness into the light?
 4. Do we have a brother or sister in the faith who is already walking in the Light that can walk with us on our journey out of the darkness? Who is that person? How can we come to trust them with our sin and weakness?
 5. "What happened in Vegas stays in Vegas, what happened at Calvary stays at Calvary." What do I think when I hear that statement? Please share.

God in Real Life

We know what our radical sins are. Who is the person in our life who is walking in the light that I trust with them? Tell them. Make a plan to go to Confession.

To the Heart

"But whoever lives the truth comes to the light, so that his works may be clearly seen as done in God." John 3:21
