

Fail

The Only Way to Fail

Even sin is not final if you don't stop. God has a call for you that is not erased by failure.

Discussion Questions

1. Who is someone who you consider to be a "success"? Why?
 2. Can you understand the general differences between an Eastern and Western mindset? Do you agree with this assessment? How could either mindset have its pros and cons? Please share and discuss.
 3. The only way for failure to be final is if you stop. Can you think of a moment in your spiritual life, in your relationships, or in your work where you have failed at something and you've heard that voice of God encouraging you to try again? Please share.
 4. Read John 21:15-19, putting yourself in the place of Peter and Jesus. What would that conversation have been like from Peter's perspective? What about from Jesus's perspective?
 5. When someone is counting on you, you have permission to fail, you have permission to struggle, but you do not have permission to stop. Who is someone who is counting on you right now? What do they need you to be or become?
