Untroubled by the Unknown

Knowing does not equal security.

Discussion Questions

1. What is one thing that you don't know that you would like to know? (It could be anything: a detail about the future, the past, something about your own life or somebody else's.)
  2. What are the kinds of things you find yourself worrying about? Why those things? (If you rarely worry, why do you think it is that you do not have anxiety?) Please discuss.
  3. It is easy to believe the idea that "knowing equals security". Is there another reason why you might find yourself "wanting to know"?
  4. We need courage to face an insecure and dangerous world. Do you think that people can grow in courage? Or is it something that you either have or you don't? If you can grow, how? What kinds of things "grow courage"? And if you think a person can't grow, why not? Please share.
  5. To live with confidence is to live "with faith" in another. When in your life is it most difficult to "have faith" in where God is leading you?

God in Real Life

This week, be courageous in the midst of insecurity. Be confident in the Lord's voice. Wait when the Lord is silent: move boldly when He speaks.
